

§ 1.8

Social MediaConnecting with InstitutionsGIVE THIS A TRY

Not every law library has a blog, but those that do can provide some really great information, especially about important cases and statutes that don't make the headlines.

Some are a bit overwhelming with long articles that often don't interest the average paralegal, but some have distilled legal renderings and even notices of events, both on site and online.

One more observation. Even scanning the titles of some of the articles contained in the blog can be of benefit. You never know when an issue might pop-up that could be relevant to an article you saw.

On the following pages you will find a list of several legal blogs, many connected to law libraries. A few tips:

- Research online for blogs from your state law libraries.
- Research online for blogs that cover the area of law you are working in, such as litigation, bankruptcy, IP law, etc.
- Don't get bogged down. Focus on keeping track of just 4 or 5 blogs to follow.
- Law Librarians of Congress Blog is massive. Worth a look.

And by the way, all the blogs would be considered secondary authority, at best.
